Study Abroad Programs

Study abroad programs may be offered using a consortium or contractual agreement

Arrangements with a foreign school are always considered contractual, even if the foreign school is Title IV - eligible.

Schools may enter into agreements with organizations that represent multiple foreign schools

A home school may also send its own faculty and students to a foreign site

This type of study abroad program does not require a written agreement but the foreign site is considered an additional location that may require approval
